

One way for praying for healing with a group of friends is for each person to put their right hand on the left shoulder of the person next to them. When this is done, people often notice a warm feeling in their right hand and on their left shoulder....and in their heart....and, if a part of their body is unwell, a warm feeling in that part of the body. Praying in a group usually brings more healing than when just two people pray. Group prayer may not always be convenient, but it is highly recommended. Think of the right hand as being the hand of ....Jesus
